

Introduction – Gwyn Samuel Williams

Chapter 1 – The red eye – basic algorithm on how to differentiate main conditions from each other- Amy-lee Shirodkar

Chapter 2 – Cellulitis and swelling around one or both eyelids- Tina Parmar

Chapter 3 – The watery eye- Dana Ahnood

Chapter 4 – Trauma to the eyelids and periorbital region- Abdus Samad Ansari

Chapter 5 – Corneal ulcers and contact lens keratopathies- Bushra Thajudeen

Chapter 6 – Corneal defects, abrasions, foreign bodies and worse- Magda Popiela

Chapter 7 – Photophobia and iritis- Gwyn Samuel Williams

Chapter 8 – Red eyes after cataract surgery and other operations- Annie See Wah Tung

Chapter 9 – Apparent sudden vision loss – an essential approach- Colm McAlinden

Chapter 10 – Flashing lights and floaters – Bhavana Sharma

Chapter 11 – New haemorrhages in the vitreous and/or retina – Tafadzwa Young-Zvandasara

Chapter 12 – There is something new and odd at the back of the eye- Rhianon Perrott-Reynolds

Chapter 13 – Wavy lines, distorted vision and blur- Annie See Wah Tung

Chapter 14 – Vitritis and posterior uveitis- Safa Ahmed Elhassan

Chapter 15 – The painful eyeball- Alexander Kin Chiang Chiu

Chapter 16 – Retinal tears and detachments- Sidath Wijetilleka

Chapter 17 – One or more bulging eyes- Derek Kwun-hong Ho

Chapter 18 – Double vision and new onset strabismus in an adult- Eulee Seow

Chapter 19 – My baby has a white pupil in this photograph and/or has a squinty eye- Ryan Davies

Chapter 20 – Non-accidental injury – Damien Yeo

Chapter 21 – One or both optic discs are swollen- Tariq Mohammad

Chapter 22 – Headaches and pain in the temple- Bhavna Kumari Sharma

Chapter 23 – Managing trauma- Bhavin Patel

Chapter 24 – Called to ITU to examine a fundus- James Potts

Chapter 25 – When there are symptoms but it all looks totally normal – Andrew Want

Chapter 26 – Triage – Amy-lee Shirodkar

Chapter 27– Summary of approach- Gwyn Samuel Williams

Chapter 28 – The moral ophthalmologist- Gwyn Samuel Williams