

Contributors

Foreword

Introduction: The Importance of Medical–Psychiatric Illness

Part I: Approach to the Patient

Chapter 1. An Internist’s Approach to the Neuropsychiatric Patient

Chapter 2. The Neurological Examination for Neuropsychiatric Assessment

Chapter 3. The Bedside Cognitive Examination in Medical Psychiatry

Chapter 4. Neuroimaging, Electroencephalography, and Lumbar Puncture in Medical Psychiatry

Chapter 5. Toxicological Exposures and Nutritional Deficiencies in the Psychiatric Patient

Part II: Psychiatric Considerations in Medical Disorders

Chapter 6. Cardiovascular Disease

Chapter 7. Endocrine Disorders and Their Psychiatric Manifestations

Chapter 8. Inflammatory Diseases and Their Psychiatric Manifestations

Chapter 9. Infectious Diseases and Their Psychiatric Manifestations

Chapter 10. Gastroenterological Disease in Patients With Psychiatric Disorders

Chapter 11. Renal Disease in Patients With Psychiatric Illness

Chapter 12. Neurological Conditions and Their Psychiatric Manifestations

Chapter 13. Cancer: Psychiatric Care of the Oncology Patient

Chapter 14. Dermatology: Psychiatric Considerations in the Medical Setting

Chapter 15. Women’s Mental Health and Reproductive Psychiatry

Part III: Medical Considerations in Psychiatric Disorders

Chapter 16. Neurodevelopmental Disorders

Chapter 17. Psychotic Disorders Due to Medical Illnesses

Chapter 18. Catatonia in the Medically Ill Patient